

nasal spray. The injectable form is usually used for hormonal tests, generally speaking, to check if your body reacts in a positive manner to such treatment. It is marketed under the name "LUTRELEF" by the German pharmaceutical company "Ferring" in Kiel, which we should have in our minds still from last issue of RX Muscle. Gonadorelins are produced and packaged in three different ways. For one, we have LHRH Ferring. It comes in a pack of one pre-mixed vial of 0.1mg strength. This type is the one usually used in medical practice to perform the various "testes-reaction-tests".

The second type, Lutrelif, is packaged in two bottles of 10cc— one with the wafer-like substance of 3.2mg strength and the other with the diluent. Once mixed, Lutrelif can be stored in the refrigerator for up to 12 weeks without any problems. It is used in hypogonadal men and is applied intravenously in small amounts throughout the day via a pump-mechanism which resembles the natural GnRH-pulses provided by the hypothalamus gland.

For our purposes, LUTRELEF can be used via injection of small amounts several times per day. A single dose of 0.25cc, that's 10 I.U. (on a regular insulin-syringe) every second or third day during a cycle will provide enough stimulus for the pituitary gland to keep up NATURAL production of testosterone as well as sperm-cell and ejaculation-volume. Your testosterone and sperm-production stays active despite the release of "INHIBIN", which is released through a feedback-loop and functions to shut down the testosterone and sperm-production (if the system signals that more than enough testosterone is secreted already). So "nuthin' coming' babe" is a thing of the past!

The price for "LUTRELEF" is anywhere from USD $215 to $350 per 10 cc depending on whether you buy it straight from the pharmacy or you buy it from your personal "supplier". Pretty expensive but the long-term-benefits of such treatment cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Especially if you keep in mind that there is a life AFTER bodybuilding .

The third type of GONADORELIN comes in form of a nasal spray. The true medical use is for treatment of hypogonadal children or young men who suffer from underdeveloped testes or completely under-developed male sex-organs. The nasal version of GONADORELIN is marketed under the brand-name KRYPTOCUR and is produced by the German company Schering who also produces the anabolic steroid "Primobolan". KRYPTOCUR comes in a pack of two pre-mixed 10cc bottles with one spray-applicator for the two bottles. In hypo-gonadal men or children, it is applied 3 times per day for a period of up to 6 month depending on the progress of development of the testes or sex-organs. Compared to LUTRELEF, KRYPTOCUR has the advantage of cutting out the numerous injections you need to endure when you are using this type of GONADORELIN. For our purposes, I would suggest to use KRYPTOCUR twice per day for 2 weeks and once per day after that as long as it lasts. This is what I did with good success. If your wallet plays along, it makes sense to take KRYPTOCUR as long as you are "on". This makes recovery from extensive steroid-use much easier. Speaking from experience, I believe KRYPTOCUR to be the best and most comfortable medication of this group. With KRYPTOCUR, I experienced no loss of strength, muscle-mass, or density while using it (even after I went "cold turkey" from the steroids). I managed to stay "on top" physically as well as sexually for a period of well over 6 weeks. Due to the more complicated production-process, KRYPTOCUR is even more expensive than LUTRELEF. The 2 bottles of nasal-spray cost Euro 297.71, that converts to USD $259 (straight from the pharmacy). The black-market price will surely be well over 350 dollars for two bottles if you are lucky. I have seen prices of around USD $300 PER BOTTLE on the street!

Given the fact, that both of the above medications work MUCH better than HCG and HMG, I still feel the price to be OK. Especially if you consider that price for the HCG-HMG-combination is even higher or equal to the price of any of the other products. You must also keep in mind that KRYPTOCUR and LUTRELEF are far more sophisticated medications and both work infinitely better.

I hope that I could be of help to all of you who do think about life after bodybuilding as well as those who need to "stay on" for one reason or the other. For any questions regarding the above, feel free to write to me at RX Muscle.

Thanks, Chris Clark
